Glen Park, San Francisco, CA

Currently a shell project with completed exteriors, the vision for this Glen Park view home is to embody a sophisticated urban retreat, seamlessly integrating modern design elements with the natural beauty of its surroundings. Drawing from its breathtaking surroundings and contemporary architectural design by John Maniscalco, the house embraces a seamless fusion of modern luxury and natural beauty with views stretching as far as the eye can see. Offering over 6,600 square feet on a double-wide lot, this unique property stands as a rare opportunity, impossible to replicate under current building restrictions in an area where large developments are no longer feasible. With an all-new facade, glazing and foundation, the home is hammer-ready for a new Owner to put their final finishing touches to realize this custom-built home. From the stunning views to the planned luxurious amenities, every aspect of the residence is meticulously designed to elevate the living experience, making it the flagship architectural home in San Francisco.
